Two Bandits And Policeman Die In Gun Battle

ANOTHER MAN IS WOUNDED IN CHICAGO FIGHT

Third Member of Robber Band Captured. Gang Trapped. Clash Occurs After Attempt to Loot Safe.

By International News Service. CHICAGO, Jan. 14.—Two bandits and a policeman were killed, another policeman was wounded and a third bandit was captured here today in a furious battle in an apartment building where the robbers had been trapped.

Police Lieutenant Edward Conroy was seriously wounded and Same Waterman, bandit, surrendered as 20 police guns were trained upon him.

Sounds Burglar Alarm apartment of Harry Sucherman, had forced him to open a safe and were to depart when the police squad arrived. Sucherman had sounded a burglar alarm with his foot as he climbed from his bed.

Lieutenant Conroy and another policeman decided to crash the front door. He detailed Murphy and Patrolman Lynch to the rear of the apartment. Murphy, however, told Lynch: "go on up front with the lieutenant, he's an old man—I'll handle the rear trick alone."

"Police officers!" roared Conroy. "Surrender!" Instead the three bandits crept to the rear where Murphy was mounting the steps. Without a word the bandits' guns roared and Murphy fell dead.

Conroy, Lynch and the third policeman opened fire. A hail of lead mowed down Wolf and Holzman. Both died instantly.

Battle in Darkness Waterman retreated into the apartment. He was seen by the police. Rain was falling in the inky darkness. Conroy, bleeding profusely from a wound in the chest, again roared for the third bandit to surrender.

Waterman appeared in the doorway and the battle was over. The two dead bandits and Waterman were well known in police circles. Detectives said they had records as burglars.

Flashlights Awakens Man. Sucherman installed the burglar device after a robbery in the apartment building a month ago. "I was awakened when a flash was turned on my face," he told police after the battle. "One bandit with a handkerchief over his face told me to stick my hands up and get out of bed. I gave them $50 but they demanded my wife's jewels in the safe. I stepped on the burglar alarm which sounded a 'tizer' in each of the other five apartments."

"We had agreed to this arrangement and each of the other residents called the police. I stalled for time, tell the burglars I was asleep. I couldn't read the combination of the safe and they would have to wait a minute. One of them threatened to slug me with the butt of his gun. I knew if I waited long enough the police would arrive. I opened the safe, showed them it was empty and they decided to leave. Just then I heard the police in my vestibule."

$4,500 ASKED FOR ALLEGED FALSE ARREST

Three Brothers Name Louis Bernstein In Suits.

EAST END CASE Donald, John N. and Harry Hughes Plaintiffs.

For "mental anguish, great humiliation, shame and disgrace," alleged to have been suffered for "false arrest," damages totaling $4,500 are asked in three suits which have been filed in municipal court by Donald, John N. and Harry Hughes, Michigan avenue brothers, against Louis Bernstein, Elizabeth street and Pennsylvania avenue grocer.

The three actions for $1,500 each, filed by Attorney James E. Davis and Cochran and Crawford, say that on January 8 the brothers were falsely arrested upon complaint of Bernstein, who charged them with the larceny of a chicken coop, valued at $10. The petition sets forth that the charges were dismissed upon motion of the city solicitor on January 10.

Chicken Coop Dispute. The plaintiffs occupied an apartment adjoining Bernstein's store until the early part of this month when Bernstein is alleged to have forced them to vacate. They then moved into another house in Michigan avenue.

Bernstein signed an affidavit charging the three with the theft of the chicken coop. John N. and Harry Hughes were brought to the city jail in the police patrol where they were held for about an hour before bond was furnished, it is alleged. The youngest of the brothers, who is 19, voluntarily appeared in court when the case was called for hearing.

Charges Dismissed. The criminal charges were dismissed by Judge Harry Brokaw after D. F. White, East End real estate operator, testified that the chicken coop, which the three were charged with having stolen, was a lot owned by Dr. R. J. Marshall and was not on Bernstein's property.

The plaintiffs charge that they were forced to spend $25 each in counsel fees to defend themselves in the criminal suits, which have resulted in injuries to their reputation, name and standing in the community.

Donald Hughes, a minor, is represented in the suit by L. N. Hughes, his next friend.

$89,189 LOSS IS EXACTED BY FIRE IN 1929

Chief Bryan Submits Report to Director Moore.

ONE BIG BLAZE

Pumper, More Hose, Additional Hydrants Urged.

Fire caused a loss of $89,189 in East Liverpool during 1929, upon which insurance amounting to $79,119 was paid, Fire Chief Thomas Bryan reported today to Service-Safety Director John W. Moore.

The fire loss in 1927 was $15,621. One of the biggest fires in the history of the city occurred in 1926 when the Fifth street business district was swept by flames, causing a loss of $230,522.

The biggest fire during the year razed the Buckeye Lumber company's mill and plant in St. Clair avenue and damaged a number of other nearby buildings, causing a loss of $56,650. The second heaviest loss of $5,750 at the Bennett grocery fire, while the A. L. Pugh Coal company derrick blaze caused a loss of $3,140.

215 Alarms Received

The insurance on buildings was $23,451 and on contents $50,663. The value of the buildings in which fires originated was $419,950, and of the contents $246,50, or a total of $666,450. The insurance on these structures and their contents amounted to $438,350.

A total of 215 alarms were received. Of this number 174 were by telephone, 19 from fire alarm boxes, 17 verbally, and one from a combination police and fire alarm box. Four false alarms were received.

Eighty-two blazes were in dwellings, while grass fires caused 28 alarms. Automobile fires numbered 22 and dump fires 11. Five others were in restaurants, four in potteries, six in garages, and four in hat-cleaning establishments. The others were miscellaneous.

Twenty-six fires were caused from burning rubbish, 10 from short circuit, 17 from soot in chimney and three from gas explosions. The causes in 46 others were listed as "unknown."

Low Record in May. The fire department had its greatest number of calls in January and April with 25 each. In December 24 alarms were received. The lowest month was May when but 13 calls were received.

The No. 1 truck at the Central station answered 167 alarms, while the No. 3 truck was out on 86 calls; No. 4 truck, 53 calls; and No. 2 truck, 49. The chief's car responded to 61 calls. The aerial truck was out on seven calls and the pumper on four calls, all in the business district.

Approximately 11,100 feet of fire hose and 3,400 feet of chemical hose were laid by No. 1 truck; 4,700 feet fire hose and 350 feet chemical hose by No. 2 truck; 3,950 feet fire hose and 600 feet chemical hose by No. 3 truck and 4,350 feet fire hose by No. 4 truck; 1,400 feet by Robinson pumper and 3,750 feet from flying squadron truck, a total of 29,150 feet of fire hose and 4,550 feet of chemical hose. A total of 250 feet of ladders and approximately 975 gallons of chemicals were also used during the year.

500 Building Inspections. The members of the fire department spent 165 hours in repair of the fire alarm system and 62 hours in the repair of the police alarm system, a total of 225 hours. Two miles of old wiring on the fire and police alarm systems was removed during the year and one mile of new wire run for the fire alarm system.

Five hundred building inspections were made during the year. Approximately 285 complaints of hazardous conditions were investigated and abatement orders issued. About 480 hours were spent in flushing and oiling fire hydrants. A total of 134 days was lost on account of sickness by members of the department.

Fire Chief Bryan, in his recommendations, urged the placing of at least six additional fire hydrants within the city; the purchase of a new 1,000-gallon pumper; purchase of 1,000 feet of two and one half inch fire hose and 200 feet of chemical hose and 26 new coats for members of the department.

APPOINTED CAPTAINS OF FIRE FIGHTERS

George P. Metsch, 45, and Clem L. Dawson, 32, were recently promoted to captaincy posts in the fire department. Metsch has been in the service for 17 years, while Dawson has been a member of the department for less than two years.

Metsch was appointed by Mayor R. J. Marshall in 1913, after he had worked at the municipal water works for about seven years. He has lived in East Liverpool practically all his life and is the father of two girls. He is a member of the Masons and Odd Fellows. His home is in Globe street.

Dawson drove truck for The Steubenville, East Liverpool & Beaver Valley Traction company before he was appointed fireman on February 15, 1928, by Mayor R. C. Benedum. He was born in East Liverpool, a son of the late Harrison Dawson. He is a member of the Elks' lodge, is married and lives in Broadway.

Captains Metsch and Dawson, who qualified January 1, succeed Earl Fenton and Richard Stivison, temporary captains.

Hundreds of buyers from department stores throughout the country are attending the 50th annual pottery and glass show, which opened here today with approximately 2,000 advocates of safety in attendance.

The meeting, which is of statewide interest, will become national wide in its scope when speakers from New York, Wisconsin, Illinois and other states address the different gatherings.

The keynote address of the three-day sessions will be delivered by Secretary of Labor James J. Davis. Every phase of accidents and their preventives will be thoroughly treated by the delegates, under the slogan "safety is better than compensations."

Governor Myers Y. Cooper addressed the congress this morning.

MEAT "RACKET" GANG IS NABBED

Cleveland Police Arrest Three After Theft of Shipments From Railroad Cars.

By International News Service. CLEVELAND, Jan. 14.—A meat "racket" ring which has been preying on railroads for the last three weeks was believed broken up today with the arrest of three men here, according to police. More than $10,000 worth of meat has been stolen from railroad refrigerator cars recently.

In this "racket," according to police, two agents of the ring would board eastbound refrigerator cars and throw off the meat as the train passed certain crossings. Other members of the gang would pick up the meat and carry it back to Cleveland where it would be sold at reduced price. The men under arrest gave their names as Harry Clark, Arthur Carnahan, and William Dobson.

JUDGE RIDDLE NAMED COUNTY SCOUT LEADER

Lisbon Jurist Succeeds Hilbert as Council Chief.

150 AT DINNER

Perry A. Lint of Columbus Outlines Program.

Probate Judge Lodge Riddle, Lisbon, was elected president of the Columbiana County council, Boy Scouts of America, at a reorganization dinner in the Lisbon Presbyterian church at 6 o'clock last night. He succeeds James S. Hilbert, East Liverpool real estate and fire insurance broker.

Joel Sharp, Salem attorney, was named first vice-president; C. W. Arnold, Wellsville real estate and insurance man, second vice-president and Ira Mellinger, Leetonia lumber dealer, third vice-president. Frank M. Gardner, East Liverpool, was re-elected treasurer.

Approximately 150 men and boys from practically every section of the county attended the dinner, presided over by Mr. Hilbert. Motion pictures taken at the Boy Scout camp at Shelton's Grove last summer were shown.

Honors Awarded.

Robert Miller, member of Troop No. 13, Leetonia, was presented with an Eagle Scout pin by Perry A. Lint, Columbus, regional executive. The Rev. Father E. J. Gracey, Wellsville, presented the honor cup to Troop No. 13, Leetonia, for the best record during 1929.

Lint discussed the building of a program for Boy Scout work during 1930. The program he declared, must be "instructive and one which appeals to boys."

"This program," Lint said, "should have a natural and moral appeal to scouts if it is to succeed. It should challenge the boy to vigorous endeavor and give him the desire to work. The scout oath and law has a definite bearing upon the future life of the boy."

Court Asks Scouts' Aid. Judge Riddle appealed to the Scouts to assist in the fight against "good homes" for boys and girls who come under the custody of the juvenile court. Scouts were urged to advise their scoutmasters of homes where children are wanted.

Mellinger also spoke briefly. Membership of the Columbiana county council, Scout Executive C. E. Felton reported, was 629 last year. During the year three new troops were organized and five dropped from the council. Approximately 249 new members were enrolled and 277 ceased their membership. Thirty-nine district courts of honor were conducted, which 612 merit badges were awarded; 114 second-class tests and 55 passed first class tests. There are 31 scoutmasters and 30 assistant scoutmasters in the county council.

Approximately 27.3 per cent of the scout membership attended the summer camp at Shelton's Grove, while 60 per cent attended the over-night camps. Membership of the county council is divided as follows: Tenderfoot, 296, second class, 167, first class, 159, star scouts, 56, life scouts, 12, Eagle scouts, 15, Eagle scouts with palm, 8.

Report of F. M. Gardner, council treasurer, showed receipts in 1929 of $5,555.47 and disbursement of $5,441.58, leaving a balance of $213.89.

POTTERY BUYER DIES SUDDENLY

Thomas Neilly, 62, Stricken With Heart Attack in Room in Canton Hotel.

Thomas Neilly, 62, pottery buyer for the Klein-Hoffmann-Zollars company, Canton department store, died suddenly in his room in a Canton hotel Sunday afternoon, following a heart attack.

Mr. Neilly, who was well known in the East Liverpool district where he visited frequently, suffered an injury to his ankle in an automobile accident on December 23, Coroner McQuake, Stark county, said that an investigation showed the accident had no connection with his death.

Besides his widow, Mr. Neilly is survived by a son and two daughters, one brother and one sister. He was a member of the St. Peter's Catholic church.

OCCUPY GIRLS' HOME, APPEALS COURT RULES

Patterson Memorial May Revert to Heirs Of Estate.

90 DAYS TO ACT Holds Donor Did Not Intend to Furnish It.

The four-story $307,000 Mary A. Patterson Memorial Christian home in East Fourth street must be furnished and occupied by the home association with 90 days or it will revert to the heirs of the estate of the late Monroe Patterson, the district court of appeals, meeting in Youngstown, ruled today.

In a decision on the suit instituted by Mrs. Della Norris, Wellsville, against the association, executors and heirs of the estate of the late Monroe Patterson, the court held that it was not the intention of Patterson before his death to furnish and equip the building. The court further ruled that Patterson had planned the construction of a swimming pool in the basement but that this had been abandoned because of the objection by state authorities.

Counsel for the home association has filed an answer, setting forth that the building will be taken over and occupied. If the structure has been damaged by its failure to be occupied the executors will be required to make the needed repairs, the court ruled.

The court continued the case until April. It progressed on occupancy of the place is made by the association by that time steps will be taken to have the swimming pool completed, the decision stated. If no progress has been made the building will be returned to the estate.

NEW YORK MAN FALLS TO DEATH

Hilbert Spencer Martin, Ill, Plunges From Bedroom Window On Eve of Voyage.

By International News Service. NEW YORK, Jan. 14.—Herbert Spencer Martin, 45, son-in-law of S. W. Straus and a member of the Fifth avenue firm of S. W. Straus and company, jumped or fell to his death from the bedroom window of his exclusive apartment residence early today.

He and his wife and their three children were to have sailed today for Egypt. While abroad Martin was to have consulted specialists for a nervous ailment.

It was Martin's custom, when he became ill, his wife said, to go to an open window and take deep breaths. It is believed that he had an attack this morning and fell while seeking relief. He was clad only in pajamas when found.

Martin was president of the Ambassador Hotel company and a vice president in the Straus company.

COLD WEATHER TO AVERT OHIO VALLEY FLOOD

Stream Reaches Mark Of 25 Feet at Noon.

STILL RISING

Many Farmers Abandon Homes in Central Zone.

Cold weather, forecast for tonight, is expected to avert a possible flood stage in the Ohio river in the East Liverpool district, government engineers at Dam No. 8 said at noon today when the stream reached the 25-foot mark.

Although rising one-tenth of a foot an hour, a crest of 26-feet is probable here late this afternoon or early tonight, lock attendants said. This prediction was based on reports that the river is stationary at Pittsburgh, although rain is still falling in the Allegheny and Monongahela river zones.

The flood stage here is 25 feet. Highway Traffic Halted. Exceptionally heavy rains yesterday and early today had brought about threats of serious floods in central and northern Ohio. Many farmers and residents of lowland towns have been forced to abandon their homes and retire to neighboring towns and villages.

Ohio streams, especially those in central Ohio, were rapidly swelling this morning and gave indications of causing considerable property damage. Many streams have already overflowed their banks.

Traffic on many state highways has been temporarily halted due to high water. The Columbus, Delaware and Marion traction line was forced to abandon electric car service when flood waters submerged the tracks near Prospect.

Rains Cause One Death. The cause of one death was attributed to the rains. Clarence Wistman, 48, was killed at Steubenville when his automobile overturned after striking a landslide which blocked the highway. The slide was due to the rain.

School buses, late yesterday, stopped operating near Akron on unimproved roads, where the Cuyahoga and Tuscarawas rivers had overflowed their banks.

Many rivers in southern Ohio were reported slightly above normal, but there was no immediate danger that they would overflow their boundaries.

The Muskingum river was reported to be rapidly rising early today and residents of Muskingum county prepared to combat the high water along the highways.

Several Roads Closed. Several state roads in Marion county were ordered closed. Unusually high water was reported due to the overflowing of the Scioto river in that county. Many of the roads there are under several feet of water.

The Olentangy river flooded the lowlands of Delaware county after a rise of four feet in 10 hours. Unestimated damage was done to culverts and bridges in Hancock county, where several were closed.

Residents of one lowland district near Massillon were forced to leave their homes by boats and seek shelter in the town. Residents of Canoe City, near Leavittsburg, were moving to higher land.

Iron and steel mills in the Mahoning valley were planning to close because of the high water of the Mahoning river. At the present rate of rise, the Mahoning river will close state road 19, between Salem and Canton, before evening. Salem reported that the rainfall there had totaled 1.7 inches since last Saturday noon.

Central States Hard Hit. By International News Service. CHICAGO, Jan. 14.—Flood-swollen rivers and tributaries, fed by masses of melting snows and rainfall, continued to do damage today throughout the central states. In many localities families were forced to abandon submerged homes.

Along the Wabash river, in the vicinity of Vincennes, Ind., volunteer crews toiled throughout the night banking crumbling banks that threatened to break under the strain of the swollen stream and flood the city's business and residential section. One hundred families living to the north of Vincennes already have evacuated their homes. Most of the residences are flooded, many of them submerged.

MAN WOUNDED, KIN HELD. By International News Service. DAYTON, O. Jan. 14.—Roy Williams, 20, is held by police for investigation here today. His brother, Floyd, 24, was fatally wounded by a revolver which is alleged to have dropped from Roy's pocket at their home last night.

POLICE CHIEF M'DERMOTT IN SUNNY SOUTH

Begins Three-Month
Vacation In Florida
City.

LONG AUTO TRIP
David Thomas And
Frank Hull In Party.

Chief of Police Hugh McDermott, recently granted a three-month leave of absence with pay, has arrived in St. Petersburg, Fla. The police department head, who joined the force 29 years ago, was accompanied by David Thomas, Wellsville, who made the entire trip, and his brother-in-law, Frank Hull, organizer for the National Brotherhood of Operative Potters who accompanied him part of the way. One week was required to make the journey from East Liverpool to St. Petersburg.

Hull Visits Charlotte, N. C. Leaving East Liverpool about 10 a. m. Saturday, January 4, the party followed the Lincoln highway to Pittsburgh, thence to Bedford where they spent the night, having made 148 miles on the first day. Leaving Bedford about 7 a. m. Sunday, January 5, the tourists followed the Lincoln highway to Chambersburg, Pa., then turned south on the Dixie highway which intersects at that point. At Hagers town, U. S. Route No. 11 was taken and by nightfall, Staunton, Va., was reached, another 215 miles having been added during the day. Hull, who was obliged to be in Charlotte, N. C. early Monday morning, left McDermott and Thomas at Staunton, taking a train to Charlotte. Hull had been at the wheel of the car both Saturday and Sunday. McDermott and Thomas again started out at 8 o'clock Monday morning, the chief driving. At 7 p. m., 300 miles more were covered. Another 23 miles, driven after dark, brought them to Charlotte where Hull had arrived Monday morning.

Weather Is Warm
Hull joined the party when they left Charlotte Tuesday morning and by nightfall they had crossed the Georgia state line, spending the night at Toccoa. During the day 179 miles had been registered on the speedometer of the car. Thomas, in a letter written from Toccoa, said that the weather there was warm. With the exception of a short stretch in Georgia the roads traversed during the first four days of the trip were extremely good, he said.

Hull left the party on Wednesday, going to Birmingham, Ala. the chief and Thomas making the remainder of the trip alone. The change in climate, friends of the police department believe, will help a throat ailment from which he has suffered for several years. Hull will spend several weeks in the south where cotton mill workers are out on strike for recognition of the union.

THE SPIRIT OF YOUTH

carry on—Avoid that future shadow

AVOID THAT FUTURE SHADOW***

By refraining from over-indulgence, if you would maintain the modern figure of fashion

Avoid the snags along the common-sense path to fitness and fashion. Don't let over-indulgence deprive you of the tantalizing contour of the modern figure. Be moderate—be moderate in all things, even in smoking. Eat healthfully but not immoderately—when your eyes are bigger than your stomach, reach for a Lucky instead. Coming events cast their shadows before. Avoid that future shadow by avoiding over-indulgence, if you would maintain the graceful, modern figure with its captivating curves.

Lucky Strike, the finest Cigarette you ever smoked, made of the finest tobacco—The Cream of the Crop—"IT'S TOASTED." Everyone knows that heat purifies and so "TOASTING" not only removes impurities but adds to the flavor and improves the taste.

"Coming events cast their shadows before"

"It's toasted"

*Be Moderate!... Don't jeopardize the modern form by drastic diets, harmful reducing girdles, fake reducing tablets or other quack "anti-fat" remedies condemned by the Medical profession! Millions of dollars each year are wasted on these ridiculous and dangerous nostrums. Be Sensible! Be Moderate! We do not represent that smoking Lucky Strike Cigarettes will bring modern figures or cause the reduction of flesh. We do declare that when tempted to do yourself too well, if you will "Reach for a Lucky" instead, you will thus avoid over-indulgence in things that cause excess weight and, by avoiding over-indulgence, maintain a modern, graceful form.

SPARROW IS PET OF DANCE STAR

NEW YORK—He's just a little sparrow picked up in St. James Park in London with wings lacerated and most of his feathers gone. His name is Negrito. But to Tina Meller, sister of Raquel Meller and herself a noted dancer, Negrito is just about everything a pet can be.

The sparrow has shown such keen intelligence that he actually senses Senorita Meller's commands in Spanish. She will tell him to perch on her shoulder; nibble at nuts held in her lips; or take a hairpin from her hair or dress—and Negrito understands and obeys.

In fact Negrito is so fond of pins that it requires all of the dancer's coaxing to make him let go of his firm little grip.

"Why my pet is so used to the theater that he dances and sings in time with the music," says the senorita. And life has certainly been varied and colorful for the little sparrow since he was picked up nearly dead seven months ago in London.

He has already seen Paris and New York, and his wanderings are not yet finished.

INFANT DEATH RATE LOWERED

CHICAGO — The 1930 model of baby will have twice as many chances of surviving and growing up to healthy adulthood as his brother or sister of 1900.

This is the prediction of the American Research Foundation as the result of a survey of vital statistics and announced in a bulletin issued here.

"Fewer infants will die in the United States in 1930 compared to the number born than ever before, if the present trend continues," the bulletin declares. "Approximately sixty-five out of every 1,000 babies born at present die before reaching their first birthday. Fifteen years ago the average was 100 infant deaths for every 1,000 births and

Here Is An Easy Way to Make $1000.00

If you were putting a new soap on the market what would you call it? You would give it some name—either simple or fancy—what would that name be? I know you have a name in mind now, or you can suggest one after a few moments' thought. The very name you select may win the $1000.00 I am offering. It makes no difference whether you live in the country or city; if you are educated or not, if you are rich or poor, I want you to help me by suggesting a name for my new soap. We have paid thousands of dollars to prize winners and in almost every instance the person who least expected to win received a prize. You, too, may win by sending a suggestion. It costs you nothing to try. You have everything to gain and nothing to lose, for any name may win. This soap is fragrant, lathers freely, promotes a smooth soft skin, is excellent for the bath, washing the hair, etc. A coined word such as Clean-Easy, Clean-All, or the name of flowers, trees, etc., or any other name you think of may be submitted.

YOU CAN'T LOSE
Even though other contestants submit the winning name first, because we will give duplicate prizes to all who send the winning name. If the name you send wins, you will receive $1000.00 regardless of how many other people have submitted the same name. This means you can't lose by others submitting the winning name first.

$100 Extra For Promptness

To get quick action we are going to pay the winner an extra $100.00 for promptness, or $1100.00 in all—so send your suggestion AT ONCE!

CONTEST RULES
This contest is open to everyone except members of this firm, its employees and relatives.
Each contestant may send only one name. Sending two or more names will cause all names submitted by that person to be thrown out.
Contest closes April 30, 1930. Duplicate prizes will be given in case of tie.
To win the prize you must suggest a name for my new soap. We have paid thousands of dollars to prize winners and in almost every instance the person who least expected to win received a prize. You, too, may win by sending a suggestion. It costs you nothing to try. You have thirty years ago it was in excess of 130 per 1,000. So the 1930 baby has a 100 per cent greater chance of surviving than the 1900 baby, due largely to the advance of science and the cooperation of the medical profession.

Nation's Appalling Fire Loss

The nation's fire loss last year, most of it attributable to carelessness, was $122,215,128, according to a report just announced by the National Board of Fire Underwriters. The figures, based on losses listed by 245 member companies, show that January, February and March are the top months of the year, due probably to the tendency to overheat furnaces and stoves during the winter.

While no figures on fatalities have been announced, fires cost annually in the United States about 15,000 lives.

East Liverpool contributed $89,159 to the property damage, the report of Fire Chief Thomas Bryan shows. Although the figures are more than five times the total reported in 1928, the losses were based upon 215 alarms and more than one-half of the total was charged to the fire which swept the Buckeye Lumber company's mill and the adjoining Smith Hardware building in St. Clair avenue.

The record speaks well for the good work done by Chief Bryan and his co-workers who, in addition to fighting fires, spent 165 hours in repairing the fire alarm systems and 62 hours in repairing the police call system, besides making 500 building inspections and investigating 285 complaints of hazardous conditions. And, too, much attention has been given to fire hydrants which have been tested at frequent intervals.

While fire insurance rates in some classifications are high here, despite a decrease within the last year, the strides which have been made in the improvement of the fire fighting facilities may prompt further concessions on the part of the underwriters. In other words, the cost of insurance decreases as the protection increases.

Had congress been in session at the time of the capital fire, it might have been assumed that the hot air directed at Secretary Mellon by the senate radicals was responsible.

Great But Not Insuperable

The United States can be proud of the spirit with which President Hoover sent this nation's delegation to the London Naval Conference. Addressing them at a breakfast in the White House before their departure to New York, Mr. Hoover encouraged them but in no way attempted to order them. A conciliatory attitude toward representatives of the other nations, a firm purpose to effect actual reduction and not limitation, and the realization that the progress of peace "rests in great measure on the shoulders" of the five delegates were the principal points in his farewell speech. The president characterizes the mission which they are undertaking as "great but not insuperable."

The success of America's delegation to the conference will depend in a large measure on the public confidence granted its members while they are meeting with the other delegates. There will be many opportunities for criticism, many occasions to lose hope, a constant temptation to sacrifice ideals for agreement. The whole complexion of the problem may be changed in a few weeks, and it is the duty of every American citizen to familiarize himself with what occurs and the refrain from premature criticism. Just as truly in an athletic contest, the spectators on the sidelines can give valuable support.

Reduction of naval armaments is not going to be a thing accomplished in a few days, a few months or even a few years. The delegation which this country is sending to London is but the advance guard of many delegations and a powerful weight of public sentiment which will be necessary to achieve the end and America's faith in the ideal which its president has stated will have to be boundless to survive the hardships and setbacks which will accompany armament negotiations with other nations. President Hoover, fortified, perhaps, with confidential information, has expressed confidence in the ultimate attainment of the ideal and his judgment merits the respect of others less well informed. He says:

"We go to London in a fine atmosphere of international good will, and it is the duty of our country to preserve that atmosphere as far as lies within our power." Cooperation, patience, encouragement and freedom from criticism are essential to the maintenance of this attitude.

Rubber Stamp Language

It sounds incredible, but Professor Frederick Tupper, president of the Modern Language association, believes that the quality of writing—sheer technique—is on the upgrade throughout the ranks of American authorism. In a recent address he declared the inefficient writer is becoming as much of an anomaly as an inefficient engineer would be and that, in an age of specialization, the author is learning to handle his tools like any other skilled worker. He detects this improvement in all literary production, from the most trivial magazine love story to the most learned essay.

Professor Tupper is in a position to draw accurate conclusions on the subject and every one who has struggled through some of the pseudo-literature of the past two decades hopes that he is correct. There is probably no activity in the world to which more unskilled people turn than writing and it is traditional that most of the amateurs are resentful of criticism. Any trend toward closer adherence to the laws of grammar and the traditions of good writing is bound to have a good effect on the status of American literature.

The upward trend in writing, however, has had little if any effect upon speech. Slang, powerful as it may be when it is new, soon becomes stale and its wide usage has deadened the power of expression. In a manner of speaking, it is a habit which fastens itself upon one and starves his vocabulary. Those clever enough to create their own slang are in a marked minority and the expressions which they originate from time to time are seized avidly by others too lazy to think for themselves. Speech atrophy is the result.

Some clever person floated the expression "not so hot" a few years ago and today it is used by millions who would be hard pressed to think of a synonymous phrase to express their boredom or disapproval. In time it will be supplanted by another and perhaps a more colorful creation, also of the rubber-stamp type. It is not pleasant to reflect on the mental activity of a nation which gets its speech as it gets its clothes—ready to wear.

There are good effects, too. The person who has the ambition and the ability to use original expressions stands out above his fellows. So prevalent indeed is the tendency to be "sloppy" in speech that observance of common niceties serves to attract favorable attention.

From San Francisco comes the announcement that television attachments, which will sell for $100 or less and be adaptable for use on any standard radio set, will be on the market in the very near future. We're for progress, all right, but there's no guarantee that the images of some of the radio artists broadcasting is going to add to our appreciation of their efforts in any marked degree.

Other Editorial Opinions

BRICKBATS FOR BUSINESS WOMEN.

A man who would say the unkind things about women just published by Doris E. Fleischman would probably have to seek exile until the storm blew over. Being a woman herself, and a highly successful one, she may escape with face unscratched and hair unpulled. She is safe from the charge of calling the grapes sour, because she has made money and an important place for herself in the men's world of business as "public relations counsel." If women are as ladylike as she complains they are, they will ignore the impolite names she calls them. Her version of their faults will reach many of them, since it appears in the January Ladies' Home Journal, but she evidently is not afraid of counter-attack or even quiet refutation of her unflattering accusations.

Eight and a half million women in the United States work in all of the 572 occupations except 35. They are employed in many industries for which they would have been considered totally unfitted two or three decades ago. There are nearly 60,000 of them, for example, in the iron and steel industries. They have tackled everything, from the hardest physical labor to the professions requiring special mental aptitudes and long training. After going into all this side of the work of women, Miss Fleischman asks herself if women are "fairly successful." She thinks not.

Because they have not come out at the top of their line after starting in, as many self-made men do, at inferior and menial tasks, she calls them failures. It is true that many young women, beginning as stenographers, describe themselves and honestly believe themselves to be well educated, ambitious, brimming with initiative, judgment, executive ability and the desire to climb to the top of the ladder. If they find in a few years that they overrated their capacities, it is no more than many young men do. Of every five workers in the country, one is a woman. A list of outstandingly successful men at the age of, say 50, naturally numbers many more names than a corresponding list of women. It undoubtedly numbers more than four times as many names, a proportion which should satisfy the most ambitious woman, since it squares with the proportion of both sexes working. But 25 or 30 years ago, when these now prominent men and women were getting their start, there was not only a much greater discrepancy between the number of men and women working; there was an even greater difference in the opportunities open to them. If the women can muster not a fifth, but a fiftieth, of the genuinely successful, they have a record to be proud of.—New York Times.

A BAD TIME TO COVER UP.

New York Day By Day

By O. O. McINTYRE

By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Jan. 14.—Custom spies have garnered a rich harvest this season. Such snoopers are found where you least expect them—the casual passenger, deck chair neighbor on ship board, the humble clerk abroad, hotel porter, femme de chambre, barman and others working where people gather.

In a way, the government is forced to this unworthy espionage for it is the only way to cope with smuggling. The informer is paid 25 per cent of the fine imposed for information and in no instance is his identity revealed to those whom he betrays.

Thus the valet or nurse in a wealthy family may keep tab on purchases abroad, file the list with officials and receive a handsome reward without even losing his job. Clerks in European jewelry houses are the biggest profiteers in getting their divvy of smuggling fines.

Even in reputable establishments clerks have been known to jockey customers into a trap. They whisper ways and means for evading duties and immediately dispatch information to proper authorities and later receive the rewards of their treachery.

The biggest smuggling malefactors—outside of the professionals—are the extremely rich. They are forever taking chances and forever being caught. At times they are permitted to get away with loot for several voyages and then one day their baggage is sealed and carted off to warehouses.

Custom inspectors and appraisers are usually tolerant with petty infractions. Each passenger is permitted to bring in dutiable goods to the amount of $100. But where frugal passengers have saved for years for the Big Spurge and bring in a trifle above that amount the official eye is winked.

Human equation governs custom inspection. The professional is shown no mercy. If he has offended before, he is taken into the inspection quarters, stripped, and often detained 24 hours incommunicado. His luggage goes under a microscopic examination.

Those who have dallied with a champagne cocktail and potato chips at the 5 o'clock hour in the intimate and stuffy room of the Ritz lady's bar in Paris are again transplanted into that atmosphere in the New York theater this winter. Two sophisticated comedians—the sort dubbed "smart"—reproduce the scene accompanied by the usual accolade of wise cracks exploding there.

Where the Knickerbocker hotel bar stood 15 years ago is a drug store. In the old bar one thirsty noon time I recall receiving a bartender's scowl for asking for a lemonade. The other day in about the same spot I asked for a lemonade and received a soda jerker's smile. And yet there are those who say prohibition has made no changes.

I like to reminisce about the Knickerbocker. The place is haloed with first thrilling memories of New York. In its lobby I saw Caruso swing out the revolving door, a feather in his green Homberg hat and his cane held in the military fashion. He attended, for his afternoon stroll on the avenue. I lunched there once with Weber Fields and it was at the Knickerbocker I learned to call a napkin a "serviette"—that is in those moments when I am putting on the lug. Its dining room taught me the charming mysteries of encaseroles and also the menu name for chicken under glass. And the Knickerbocker had the grandest gold embossed stationery of all the hotel writing rooms into which I dropped to write to brag to the folks how I was getting on.

Harris Merton Lyon, that brave literary spirit whose spirit was so tragically brief, introduced me to my first posset cafe at the Knickerbocker. I watched the expert barman build it tenderly and carefully into its rainbow beauty, downed it at a gulp and strolled outside to watch Times Square turn a somersault.

The Reviewing Stand

By TOM T. JONES

HAVING been carefully preserved for nearly 41 years, a letter written by Jefferson Davis in his own hand is one of the prized possessions of former Mayor John H. Burgess of this city. The former head of the Southern Confederacy did not dictate the missive, but then, an old man almost at the end of his career, used his own pen and just the ordinary writing paper used in family communications of that day. Outside of the salutatory and signature sections of the note he used exactly 62 words in it.

The brief epistle was one to Mr. Burgess in reply to a letter he had sent the one-time greatly maligned leader of the states that attempted to fight themselves out of the Union. The former wrote to the Southerner at the suggestion of the late A. H. Clark, East Liverpool attorney. Because Mr. Burgess had been one of the guards of Mr. Davis when he was confined, immediately after his capture in Georgia, at Fortress Monroe, Va. Mr. Clark thought the amenities of the situation demanded a line from the former East Liverpool soldier to the man whom he had befriended in prison.

Incarceration in Fortress Monroe had borne heavily upon the one-time head of the Lost Cause. Added to his troubles was the fact that he had been manacled. This cut deeply into his pride. He refused to eat for a time, it is said. The coffee served him in a large tin cup became cold. Then it was that Private Burgess elected to assist him in taking nourishment. He took the coffee and heated it over an oil lamp. He had no spoon by which to stir the sugar in it. So he used his bayonet, Jefferson Davis, seeing the effort made in his behalf by his guard, gratefully accepted the steaming drink. It served to cheer and comfort him. Later he began eating.

This incident was again brought to the mind of Mr. Davis by the letter of Mr. Burgess, if he had ever forgotten it. The tenure of his reply would indicate that he had a vivid memory, but did not want to dwell upon certain incidents in his career. But he showed conclusively that he ever held the act of Mr. Burgess in grateful appreciation. He even extended his best wishes for his family whom he had never seen.

"Years of the 15th has been received," President Davis' letter, written at Beauvoir, Miss., his home, on February 25, 1889, ran. Then: "I am glad to know that you are living and retain a kind remembrance of a period which you will readily understand can not be pleasant to me to refer to. For the kind act you thus have the recompense which good deeds always bring to themselves. Please accept my best wishes for you and yours. Respectfully, Jefferson Davis."

Mr. Davis wrote a small hand, it savors much of feminine chirography. The lines would indicate that he was a personage of careful adjustments. His written words do not have the appeal of the larger and more open specimens that Abraham Lincoln exhibited. For the latter was a good penman. Neither would the writing suggest from its apparent mildness of form that the man responsible for it had directed such military minds as Robert E. Lee and Stonewall Jackson. They would not reveal him as a one-time secretary of war of the United States or a West Point graduate who had been a backwoodsman fighting along with Abraham Lincoln in the Black Hawk war.

It serves to penetrate the horrors of the World war, pass through the haze of the Spanish-American struggle and reveal again the striking setting that sent Americans into a clash without precedent for its fierceness and the cement-like coalition of its result.

Mr. Davis uses just an ordinary envelope in which to send his letter. The stamp is more green than blue and carried a likeness of George Washington, Thomas Jefferson or Alexander Hamilton. It is a sideview of the figure portrayed. He also wrote the address upon the envelope in his own hand.

MR. BURGESS had the keen forethought to keep intact this letter. He showed it to his friends at the time of receiving it. At intervals throughout the years he has permitted others to view it. But always he has insisted upon its preservation. It would grace most any historical society collection. Because of the reason behind its writing it would doubtless be welcomed by many of the government agencies or museums in Washington.

Meanwhile the instigator of the letter and the man to whom it was written, Mr. Burgess, continues active in his eighty-sixth year after having celebrated with Mrs. Burgess their sixtieth wedding anniversary on Christmas day. As notary public, he began the new year by attending to the issuances of numerous dog licenses.

Added interest is attached to this letter when the fact is recalled that Jefferson Davis and Abraham Lincoln were both Kentuckians and both were born not a great distance from the other. Mrs. Lincoln and Jefferson Davis were of families that knew each other.

Then it must be recalled that the writer of this letter to Burgess carried an added distinction other than he had once been a member of a president's cabinet. He was also the son-in-law of a president of the United States. He married the daughter of President Zachary Taylor, the "Old Rough and Ready" of the Mexican war in which, as a subaltern lieutenant, Jefferson Davis also took part.

This missive serves to exhibit an old man, who had touched the greatest minds of his time, both in the world of statesmanship and in the military arm. The hand that guided the letters into words in this bit of a long-kept letter had pointed the way almost to a separation of the American Republic. The intellect that dictated it stood out as a brilliant one of his day. He was a gifted figure despite the horrors that came with his activity for his cause.

It will ever be an arresting fact that Abraham Lincoln, enroute to Washington to take the oath of the presidency after leaving his home in Springfield, Ill., passed through East Liverpool on Valentine's day of 1861. His soul was then filled with forebodings of an effort to break the union of the states.

It never occurred to him that day as he passed the serpentine bend of the Ohio river between Wellsville and East Liverpool that somewhere in the hamlet nestling upon the hills that he was passing, was an eighteen-year-old lad who, four years later, when his own life had been snuffed out in the struggle facing him, would stand guard over his chief opponent of the coming combat.

"I need the help of every one in the situation at hand, even you," Lincoln told a man shouting against him as he spoke in Wellsville that day. And John H. Burgess gave it! He served in the ranks. The warfare over, he followed Lincoln again when he stirred the sugar of the caught Confederate leader with his bayonet. It was the Lincoln way. Enemies once; Americans ever; brothers forever!

YOUTH STRUTS STUFF IN "TANNED LEGS" FEATURE AT CERAMIC

Forty Sun-tanned Girls and June Clyde DO "BIT"

Glowing with song and resplendent with beauty—that's "Tanned Legs," Radio Pictures' tuneful show of love-dizzy youth trying to be in one-piece bathing suits, which opened Monday and continues today at the Ceramic theater.

All the glamor of the summer beaches, all the infectious gaiety and the ebullience of youth are portrayed by June Clyde and Arthur Lake, who essay the roles of Peggy Reynolds and her man, Bill, leaders of the "Dynamite Division," the jolly young crowd at the beach club.

As the press agent says, love parades, youth struts its stuff in a blaze of color to the blare of jazz in this talkie of girls, song and pep. It is a story of the new generation old enough to take a chance, young enough to laugh at consequences and game enough to try again.

This is June Clyde's first important role before the camera, and her singing and dancing mark her as a scintillating personality. With Arthur Lake, whose juvenile characterizations have carried a niche for him in filmdom, she heads a cast which includes two Broadway favorites, Ann Pennington and Allen King, and Sally Blane, Dorothy Dyer, Albert Grann, Edmund Burns, Nella Walker and Lincoln Stedman.

Forty sun-tanned Hollywood beauties contribute to this drama of modern youth that never gets morbidly serious and yet manages to hold its audience fascinated. And they entertain with joyful ease.

In addition, the bill includes Bobby Arnet and Peg Ellis in a Vitaphone talkie, "Those Cheerful Steppers," Fox talking pictures depicting the Stanford-West Point football game; the real thing in Spanish dancing and how to eat with chopsticks; the Paramount news, visualizing events of interest, and a two-reel all-talking comedy, "Crazy Feet," in which Charley Chase is a comedian in the role of a dancer.

All in all, it is a well balanced program—F. R. O'H.

POLICE 'FAIL TO GET THEIR MAN' IN 'TIGER ROSE' AT AMERICAN

Lupe Velez, Monte Blue Star in Hudson Bay Story.

The reputation of the Northwestern Mounted police to "get their man" was not sustained in the picture drama, "Tiger Rose," a Warner Brothers production, which began a three-day run at the American theater yesterday.

The scene is in the Hudson Bay country before the days of the railroads and when the work of maintaining order was largely in the hands of the mounted police. This picture will appeal to the sportsman and the lover of outdoor life. One of the most thrilling parts is a canoe shooting the rapids of the American river in the Sierras, a tributary of the Sacramento River.

Lupe Velez, as Rose, a French Canadian girl, appears in the title role, while Monte Blue, Indian star, is Sergeant Devlin, of the Northwestern mounted police. Grant Withers, Bull Montana, H. B. Warner and Rin-Tin-Tin, noted police dog, are other screen celebrities in the production.

Rose is the ward and adopted daughter of Hector McCollins, Hudson Bay factor. Devlin and Pierre, a Frenchman, are in love with her, but she loves only Bruce Norton, a young surveyor and engineer. Dr. Ball, a physician and friend of McCollins, is watchful over the girl.

The natives of the country resist the invasion of railroad engineers. Rose secretly meets Bruce and is seen by Dr. Ball. That night the physician invites Bruce to his home and in a scuffle for possession of the engineer's gun, the doctor is shot and the cabin is fired.

The man-hunt for Bruce starts with Devlin in charge. Rose, believing Bruce to be innocent, locates him in the woods with the aid of "Scotty," none other than Rin-Tin-Tin. She secrets him in the basement of the post headquarters during a storm which sweeps the country.

Rose and Bruce flee from the house the next day and start down the river in a canoe. Devlin who has been hiding under a blanket covers Bruce with a gun after the canoe starts over the rapids.

Rose threatens to jump from the canoe if Devlin takes Bruce to the shore. The sergeant then realizes the girl loves Bruce and sends them on their journey and he is landed on an island. When other members of the troop reach him they are told that Bruce and the girl lost their lives in the rapids and the case is ended.

A Grantland Rice sport feature of an English fox hunt and a talking comedy entitled, "At the Ritz," complete the bill.—H. J. K.

EAST END 13 RESPONSES TO ALTAR CALL

Boyce Methodist Episcopal Pastor
Stresses Importance of Doing Things At Right Time.

Thirteen persons responded to altar call during the first week of the revival campaign in the Boyce Methodist Episcopal church the pastor, the Rev. E. C. Brooks, announced today. More than 200 people attended the Sunday night services.

In his sermon last night the Rev. Mr. Brooks stressed the importance of doing things when they should be done, pointing out that to daily with trifling things often causes people to forget the really important matters of life. His subject was "First Things First."

"There is danger in becoming engrossed with the minor things of life," he said. "There are many things, seemingly harmless, which, if we continue doing, will cause moral loss."

"Many a life is a failure because no great thoughts are thought, no great acts done and no great books read. If we allow ourselves to live a small, trifling life we rob ourselves of our greatest heritage. God is calling both young and old to a life of devotion to greater things. May He help us to heed the call and put first things first, even as Christ did so."

GENEVA COLLEGE AIDE SPEAKS AT WELLSVILLE P.T. RALLY

BETTER BOOKS ARE URGED BY MISS M'DOWELL

Instructor Stresses Need of Children's Reading. MacDONALD MEET Speaker Pays Tribute To Mother Goose Tales.

WELLSVILLE—Addressing one of the largest Ninth street school audiences of the year, Miss Gwila McDowell, head of the department of English at Geneva college, last night stressed the importance of children's reading as a background for their college work and, in fact, their entire lives, in her talk to the MacDonald Parent-Teacher association.

Deceiving the so-called popular form of reading which so easily finds its way into countless homes, Miss McDowell urged a more generous response to the ancient and modern classics to obtain the really good reading.

She paid a tribute to the tales of Mother Goose, and countless nursery stories, stressing their importance in the development of the minds of children of pre-school age.

She pointed out that there should be volumes of Grimm and Andersen, the fairy tale writers, in every home where there are children, as well as a comprehensive selection of the myths.

It is impossible to crowd into three or four years of college work, the reading that should have been done over a period of 15 to 20 years, she declared.

Miss McDowell exhibited several copies of the children's books with which she found the greatest favor.

Pupils of the lower grades collaborated in the presentation of an interesting program.

The school's rhythmic orchestra pleased with three selections, directed by Miss Nell McCombs. Students of Miss Helen Round's class told in puppet show form the story of the "Three Bears." Under the supervision of Miss Maxine Heron, first grade students read a story from one of their books, each taking part.

Several duet selections were given by Wayne and Bobby Calhoun, accompanied on the piano by their mother, Mrs. J. F. Calhoun.

Mrs. Arnold McCombs presided. At the close of the program, luncheon was served by the social committee.

GIVE PROGRAM FROM WHEELING

Wellsville And East Liverpool Musicians, including Orchestra, On Air From WVVVA.

WELLSVILLE—The Rev. D. E. Young, pastor of the First Christian church, broadcast a program of music over radio station WVVVA in Wheeling, W. Va., last night. He was assisted on the program by Miss Campbell, pianist-accompanist, Paul Katz, violinist, and his accompanist, Mrs. O. W. Cummings. Besides this group, the Rev. Mr. Young was accompanied by a nine-piece orchestra composed of players from both East Liverpool and Wellsville.

MINSTREL UNIT NAMES LEADERS

F. L. Freshwater is Elected Head of Association.

CHESTER—F. L. Freshwater, elected chairman of the Community Minstrel association, composed of members of the board of trade, board of education, Chester Volunteer Fire department, Parent-Teacher association and the city officials, which was organized at a meeting last night of delegates from each of the five organizations in the council chambers of the city building. Other officers named were: Secretary, Harry Oyster, who is president of the board of education, and J. C. Cunningham, treasurer, a member of the board of trade.

A minstrel show is planned by the association to be presented in the early part of February. The proceeds will be used to help purchase a traffic light to be placed at the corner of Third street and Carolina avenue. A heater for the shower baths in the basement of the city hall, for use of basketball players will be purchased and the remainder of the fund will be turned over to the board of education which will purchase new books for the high school library and equipment for the two public school musical organizations.

Chairman Freshwater appointed J. C. Cunningham, Mayor Earl Milby and Joseph Davis as the ticket committee; R. A. Douglass, A. L. Rabenstein and John Allison on the stage committee and A. L. Rabenstein as chairman of the publicity committee.

Mayor Earl Milby explained at last night's meeting that the traffic light will not only be of beneficial use to the Chester motorists but will also be of value to the school children coming from the Central building at Third street.

The delegates from the five organizations last night were: Board of Trade, J. C. Cunningham, R. A. Douglass and Joseph Davis; Parent-Teacher association, Cyril Taylor, F. L. Freshwater and William Walker; Board of Education, A. L. Rabenstein, Harry Oyster and Elmer Allison; Mayor Earl Milby, Roy Bartley and Elmer Conley, both councilmen; and the Volunteer Firemen, E. V. Welner, Oris Cluff and John Allison.

The meeting of the association will be held at 6:30 o'clock Wednesday night in the city hall, when final plans, a director and the date of the minstrel will be given.

PHILANTHROPIST IS OFF FOR HONEYMOON

Julius Rosenwald, Chicago financier and philanthropist, and Mrs. Adele Goodkind, of St. Paul, mother of Mrs. Lessing Rosenwald, were married January 8, at the Lessing Rosenwald home, "The Meadows" at Abington, a suburb of Philadelphia. Children of the bride and groom by their first marriages were the only guests and witnesses to the ceremony, which was performed by Judge Horace Stern, of Philadelphia. Immediately after the ceremony they sailed on the liner Sarnia for an Egyptian honeymoon.

MISSION UNIT PLANS PAGEANT

WELLSVILLE—Members of the Women's Missionary society of the First Christian church will rehearse Tuesday night in the church parlors for the pageant to be given Sunday night, Jan. 26, according to announcement today by the Rev. D. W. Young, pastor.

Missionary society members as well as others from the congregation will take part in the Biblical presentation.

Mrs. McKinley Crawford is chairman of the committee in charge of pageant plans.

The annual meeting of the church will be held Wednesday night and on Thursday night the Loyal Women's Bible class will convene with Mrs. T. C. Campbell. The choir meets Friday night.

"Jesus has not changed in his emphasis on the things that should come first in life," the Rev. Young declared in his Sunday morning sermon when he discussed "The Unchanging Jesus."

"Jesus said 'Seek ye first the kingdom of God and His righteousness, and these things (the material things which humanity needs) will be added unto you.'"

"This is an economic statement if the world of business believes this economic statement of Jesus there would follow the greatest period of prosperity the world has ever known."

Despite rainy weather the Bible school attendance of the church totaled 226. Both morning and evening services were well attended. The Rev. Mr. Young spoke in the evening on "Week-Day Christianity." A vocal duet, "Jesus Will," was sung by T. C. McClelland and D. E. Young at the evening services.

FEW OBJECT TO ROAD CHANGE

Salem-Lisbon Highway Will Be Straightened; Brick Section Is To Be Rebuilt.

LISBON—Little if any objection has been filed with the county commissioners relative to the re-locating, and reconstruction of the brick section of the Salem-Lisbon road. The commissioners have held a hearing on this project for the purpose of ascertaining what damages, if any property owners would sustain as a result of the improvement.

This road is to be straightened as much as possible, and at McCracken's Corners a barn will have to be removed and re-located as the new route passes through the site.

At the Intersection of the Salem-Lisbon-Franklin Square road, the grade is to be decreased and as far as possible this part of the highway will be straightened into an "S" curve at the latter point is to be eliminated.

All property owners on this section of road appeared before the commissioners, and it is announced that no claims for excessive damages have been filed.

The improvement will be made by the state highway department, and plans for the new road have been prepared by County Surveyor Lloyd C. Kirk, and approved by the commissioners and the state.

Reconstruction of the highway will begin early in the spring, and it is possible that the project will be sold at the February letting by the state highway department.

CHESTER EXAMS JAN. 15-16 CHESTER—First semester examinations will be held in the Chester high school Wednesday and Thursday, January 15 and 16. The honor roll students, with an average of 90 or better in all four grades, will be exempt from the tests.

WELLSVILLE—Members of the Violet circle of the African Methodist Episcopal church will entertain with a chicken supper in the Knights of Pythias hall, Fifth and Main street, beginning at 5 o'clock Thursday night. The Log Cabin Harmony Four will entertain with a program of vocal numbers between 5:30 and 6 o'clock.

PLANS 10-WEEK CHURCH CLASS OF TRAINING

Midland To Organize School Wednesday, Jan. 22.

FIVE COURSES Sessions To Be Held In Presbyterian Edifice.

MIDLAND—Final arrangements for the annual ten-week Midland Training school have been completed by the Community Board of Christian Education. The classes will convene on Wednesday, January 22.

Five courses have been selected. Classes will meet nightly. The lessons and instructors include: "Primary Method in Church School" (Munkres), Miss Cora B. Andrews, principal of the First Street grade school; "Junior Method in Church School" (Powell), by Miss Edna Elliot, opportunity teacher in the Midland schools; "Teaching the Youth of the Church" (Maus), the Rev. C. W. Cochran, pastor of the First Presbyterian church; "Church School Administration" (Ferguson), H. V. Herlinger, superintendent of schools; "How We Get Our Bible" (Smyth), the Rev. William R. Gregg, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church.

The sessions will be held in the First Presbyterian church, Ohio avenue, at 8 o'clock. The exercises will be opened with a special worship service. Membership will be open to department superintendents and teachers and church members.

The classes will be conducted as a standard training school which is accredited by the International Council of Religious Education. The movement is sponsored by the educational boards of the Presbyterian and Methodist Episcopal churches here. Examinations will be given by the boards and credits awarded at the end of the semester.

The Board of Christian Education, consisting of three members and the pastor from each church, has organized as follows: General chairman, Mrs. Gilbert Cowfer; chairman curriculum committee, the Rev. Mr. Cochran; chairman finance, Earl Beglin; chairman of publicity, E. M. Wallover; dean, the Rev. Mr. Cochran.

LISBON—In a divorce petition filed in common pleas court by Mattie Coldsnow against her husband, Perry Coldsnow, the plaintiff has set up that her signature to a deed conveying 50.9 acres in Hanover township to Coldsnow was obtained through fraud and misrepresentation.

LISBON CITES CENTURY-OLD STAGE TRAVEL

Horse-Drawn Vehicles Used In Journey To Pittsburgh.

14-HOUR TRIP

Motor Coaches Now Cover Route In 2 1-2 Hours.

LISBON—A century ago stages were operated between Lisbon and Pittsburgh. Today there is similar transportation facilities, but by motor bus. The traveling time of the first stage between Pittsburgh and New Lisbon was 14 hours, and today the motor time is two hours and 36 minutes.

That stages were to be operated between Pittsburgh and New Lisbon was first made known May 23, 1829, it is recalled by an advertisement that has just come to light at Lisbon. It was the "march of improvement in matters of travel and communication," according to John Feehan, who then resided at Wellsville, and David Watson, who at the time operated a hotel at New Lisbon.

But this first stage coach line did not stop at New Lisbon, but continued westward through Canton, Wooster and to Lower Sandusky, a distance of 199 miles.

Three Trips Weekly The first stage line was known as the "Pittsburgh, Beaver, New Lisbon, Canton and Wooster Line of Stages," and the public was informed of the starting of the line as follows:

"The public are informed that a regular line of stages is now running to and from the above places, three times a week, leaving Pittsburgh on Tuesday, Thursday and Saturdays at 10 o'clock a. m. and arriving at New Lisbon on the same day at 10 o'clock p. m. The stage will leave New Lisbon on Wednesday, Friday and Sundays at 3 o'clock a. m. and arrive at Wooster at 7 o'clock p. m. the same day.

"Offices for the above line will be at Griffiths, Wood street, Pittsburgh; McClure, Beaver Pa.; Watson's, New Lisbon; Dewalt's, Canton; Hemphrys, Wooster.

Establish Accommodation Line "To facilitate the transportation of passengers arriving in New Lisbon or Wellsville, on any other than the regular stage days, the subscribers have procured good carriages, horses and car drivers to ply daily between Lisbon and Wellsville, 14 miles from the former, at which place a steamboat can ordinarily be procured, to proceed to Pittsburgh, Steubenville or Wheeling. In addition to which a hack will be constantly kept at the stage office of John Feehan of Wellsville to accommodate those preferring the latter mode of conveyance to any of the above places.

The proprietors of the accommodation line just established, pledge themselves to spare no pains to render the situation of those who may favor him with their patronage both comfortable and agreeable. Fare reasonable, and every attention paid to baggage, but in all cases it must be at the risk of the owner.

"Arrangements have been made to meet the Middlebury and Warren stages in New Lisbon on Tuesdays and Saturdays, which stages will leave town regularly every Wednesday and Sunday mornings."

Soon after this stage coach line was established, contracts were made whereby mail was to be carried, and the last of the overland mail drivers, William Fraser, who carried mail between Wellsville and Lisbon, still lives and resides at Lisbon.

HELD ON RUM COUNT.

Michael Zimjanic, Elm street, Hopewell township, is awaiting action today of the county courts under $2,000 bond following a hearing before Justice Michael Kane, Allequippa, on a charge of possessing intoxicating liquors. County Detectives C. J. O'Loughlin and Robert Brayan and state police, who conducted the raid, declare they confiscated 135 gallons of wine, small quantity of whiskey and some beer, in the cellar of the home.

The Bishop Murder Case

Philo Vance Story of Mystery and Crime. . . . By S. S. VAN DINE

CHAPTER 11.

"I'm not so sure," returned Markham dubiously. "It appears utterly meaningless to me. But I'll follow your suggestion. Neither the professor nor Miss Dillard, however, could recall any personal association with the word Bishop; and the professor was inclined to agree with Markham that the note was without any significant bearing on the case. "It strikes me," he said, "as a piece of juvenile melodrama. It isn't likely that the person who killed Robin would adopt a vague pseudonym and write notes about his crime. I'm not acquainted with criminals, but such conduct doesn't impress me as logical." "But the crime itself was illogical," ventured Vance pleasantly. "One can't speak of a thing being illogical, sir," returned the professor tartly, "when one is ignorant of the very premise of a syllogism."

"Exactly," Vance's tone was studiously courteous. "Therefore, the note itself may not be without logic."

Markham tactfully changed the subject. "What I came particularly to tell you, professor, is that Mr. Sperling called a short time ago and, when informed of Mr. Robin's death, confessed to having done it himself."

"Raymond confessed!" gasped Miss Dillard.

Markham looked at the girl sympathetically. "To be quite frank, I didn't believe Mr. Sperling. Some mistaken idea of chivalry undoubtedly led him to admit the crime."

"Chivalry?" she repeated, leaning forward tensely. "What exactly do you mean by that, Mr. Markham?"

It was Vance who answered. "The bow that was found on the range was a woman's bow."

"Oh!" The girl covered her face with her hands, and her body shook with sobs.

Professor Dillard regarded her helplessly; and his impotency took the form of irritation.

"What flummery is this, Markham?" he demanded. "Any archer can shoot with a woman's bow. That unutterable young idiot! Why should he make Belle miserable by his preposterous confession! . . . Markham, my friend, do what you can for the boy."

Markham gave his assurances, and we rose to go.

"By the by, Professor Dillard," said Vance, pausing at the door; "I trust you won't misunderstand me, but there's a bare possibility that it was some one with access to this house who indulged in the practical joke of typing that note. Is there, by any chance, a typewriter on the premises?"

It was patent that the professor resented Vance's question, but he answered civilly enough.

"No,—nor has there ever been one to my knowledge. I threw my own machine away ten years ago when I left the university. An agency does whatever typing I need."

"And Mr. Arnesson?"

"He never uses a typewriter."

As we descended the stairs we met Arnesson returning from Drukker's.

"I've placated our local Lepidoptera," he announced, with an exaggerated sigh. "Poor old Adolph! The world is too much for him. When he's wallowing in the relativist formulas of Lorentz and Einstein he's serene. But when he's dragged down to actuality he disintegrates."

"It may interest you to know," said Vance casually, "that Sperling has just confessed to the murder."

"Ha!" Arnesson chuckled. "Quite in keeping. 'I, said the Sparrow . . . Very neat. Still, I don't know how it'll work out mathematically."

"And, since we agreed to keep you posted," continued Vance, "it may help your calculations to know that we have reason to believe that Robin was killed in the archery room and placed on the range afterwards."

"Glad to know it," Arnesson became momentarily serious. "Yes, that may affect my problem." He walked with us to the front door.

"If there's any way I can be of service to you, call on me."

Vance had paused to light a cigarette, but I knew, by the languid look in his eyes, that he was making a decision. Slowly he turned to Arnesson.

"Do you know if Drukker or Mr. Pardee has a typewriter?"

Arnesson gave a slight start, and his eyes twinkled shrewdly.

"Aha! That Bishop note . . . I see. Merely a matter of being thorough. Quite right." He nodded with satisfaction. "Yes; both have typewriters. Drukker types incessantly—thinks to the keyboard, so he says. And Pardee's chess correspondence is as voluminous as a movie hero's. Types it all himself too."

"Would it be any great trouble to you," asked Vance, "to secure a specimen of the typing of each machine, and also a sample of the paper these two gentlemen use?"

"None whatever," Arnesson appeared delighted with the commission. "Have them for you this afternoon. Where'll you be?"

"Mr. Markham will be at the Stuyvesant club. You might phone him there, and he can arrange—"

"Why bother to arrange anything? I'll bring my findings to Mr. Markham personally. Only too glad. Fascinating game, being a sleuth."

Vance and I returned home in the district attorney's car, and Markham continued to the office. At seven o'clock that night the three of us met at the Stuyvesant club for dinner; and at half past eight we were sitting in Markham's favorite corner of the lounge room smoking and having our coffee.

"During the meal no mention of the case had been made. The late editions of the afternoon papers had carried brief accounts of Robin's death. He had evidently succeeded in curbing the reporters' curiosity and clipping the wings of their imagination. The district attorney's office being closed, the newspaper men were unable to bombard Markham with questions, and so the late press was inadequately supplied with information. The sergeant had guarded the Dillard house well, for the reporters had not succeeded in reaching any member of the household."

Markham had picked up a late Sun on his way from the dining room, and glanced through it carefully as he sipped his coffee.

"This is the first faint echo," he commented ruefully. "I shudder to think what the morning papers will contain."

"THERE'S nothing to do but bear it," smiled Vance unfeelingly. "The moment some bright journalist had awakes to the robin-sparrow-arrow combination the city editors will go mad with joy, and every front page in the country will look like a Mother-Goose boarding."

Markham lapsed into despondency. Finally he struck the arm of his chair angrily with his fist. "Quit it, Vance! I won't let you inflame my imagination with this idiosyncrasy of nersery rhymes."

Then he added, with the ferocity of uncertainty: "It's a sheer coincidence, I tell you. There simply couldn't be anything in it."

Vance sighed. "Convince yourself against your will; you're of the same opinion still-to paraphrase"

"Not always because of over-eating, but because a gland is weak. That gland largely controls nutrition. When it is weak one may nearly starve, yet stay fat. Modern physicians the world over now combat this great cause of obesity. And excess fat, in late years, has been disappearing fast."

Marmola prescription tablets contain the chief factors which they use. People have used them for 22 years—millions of boxes of them. And countless slender figures everywhere now show the amazing effects."

Go try this right method to reduce. Stop starving. Read the book in the box with the formula and reasons. Ask your druggist today for a $1 box of Marmola and watch the change."

Butler." He reached into his pocket and took out a sheet of paper. "Putting all juvenilia to one side pro tempore, here's an edifying chronology I drew up before dinner . . . Edifying? Well, it might be if we knew how to interpret it."

Markham studied the paper for several minutes. What Vance had written down was this:

9:00 a. m. Arnesson left house to go to university library.

9:15 a. m. Belle Dillard left house for the tennis courts.

9:30 a. m. Drukker called at house to see Arnesson.

9:30 a. m. Drukker went downstairs to archery-room.

10:00 a. m. Robin and Sperling called at house and remained in drawing-room for half an hour.

10:30 a. m. Robin and Sperling went down to archery-room.

10:32 a. m. Drukker says he went out for a walk, by the wall gate.

10:35 a. m. Beedle went market-ing.

10:55 a. m. Drukker says he returned to his own house.

11:15 a. m. Sperling went away by wall gate.

11:30 a. m. Drukker says he heard a scream in his mother's room.

11:35 a. m. Professor Dillard went on balcony of Arnesson's room.

11:40 a. m. Professor Dillard saw Robin's body on archery range.

11:45 a. m. Professor Dillard telephoned to District Attorney's office.

12:25 p. m. Belle Dillard returned from tennis.

12:30 p. m. Police arrived at Dillard house.

12:35 p. m. Beedle returned from market.

2:00 p. m. Arnesson returned from university.

Ergo: Robin was killed at some time between 11:15 (when Sperling entered) and 11:40, (when Professor Dillard discovered body).

The only other persons known to have been in the house during this time were Pyne and Professor Dillard.

Disposition of all other persons connected in any way with the murder was as follows (according to statements and evidence now in hand):

1. Arnesson was at the university library between 9 a. m. and 2 p. m.

2. Belle Dillard was at the tennis courts between 9:14 a. m. and 12:25 p. m.

3. Drukker was walking in the park between 10:32 a. m. and 10:55 a. m.; and was in his study from 10:55 a. m. on.

4. Pardee was in his house the entire morning.

5. Mrs. Drukker was in her room the entire morning.

6. Beedle was marketing between 10:35 a. m. and 12:35 p. m.

7. Sperling was on his way to the Grand Central Station between 11:15 a. m. and 11:40 a. m., at which hour he took a train for Scarsdale.

Conclusion:—Unless at least one of these seven alibis is shaken, the whole weight of suspicion and indeed the actual culpability, must rest upon either Pyne or Professor Dillard.

The Story Thus Far:—

A man known as Cock Robin is shot through the heart with an arrow on the archery range beside the home of Professor Dillard, a mathematical genius. The crime seems to be a mad man's dramatization of "Who Killed Cock Robin?" District Attorney Markham is puzzled by the apparently senseless circumstances attending the crime and asks the aid of Philo Vance, a wealthy young bachelor who dabbles in the solving of unusual mysteries.

The police get on the trail of Sperling, the last man known to have been with Robin. Both men were in love with Belle Dillard, the professor's niece, and were arguing over her just before Robin was murdered. Sigurd Arnesson, a protégé of Dillard's is also a brilliant, cynical man and jokes to marry Belle Dillard. He is a brilliant cynical man and jokes lightly even about the murder. A neighbor, Pardee, a wealthy disillusioned man with a passion for chess, shows an interest in the case. Mrs. Drukker and her son Adolph, also neighbors seem to know something which they fear to tell. Mrs. Drukker has an unbalanced mind and believes her son still a baby. Drukker, a cripple, is an abnormal type with a super-intellect, working on startling and radical theories in higher mathematics. Vance determines to question Drukker.

Drukker claims that he heard his mother scream the morning of the murder. The window of her room faces out on the archery range, and Vance believes she has seen something, though she denies it.

Sperling who has been arrested confesses to the murder. But it is plain that he is trying to protect Belle Dillard whom he believes to be guilty, and Vance is convinced that he is innocent.

Meantime a mysterious mocking note is received from the murderer. It is signed THE BISHOP. Vance assembles the facts in the case, in the hope of forming some theory.

CHAPTER 12

When Markham finished reading the paper, he made a gesture of exasperation.

"Your entire implication is preposterous," he said irritably; "and your conclusion is ridiculous. The chronology helps set the time of Robin's death, but your assumption that one of the persons we've seen today is necessarily guilty is a rant nonsense. You completely ignore the possibility that any outsider could have committed the crime. There were three ways of reaching the range and the archery room without entering the house—the wall gate on 75th street, the other wall gate on 76th street, and the alleyway between the two apartment houses, leading to Riverside Drive."

"Oh, it's highly probable that one of these three entrances was used," returned Vance. "But don't overlook the fact that the most secluded, and therefore the most likely, of these three means of entry to wit, the alleyway—is guarded by a locked door to which no one would be apt to have a key except some member of the Dillard household. I can't picture a murderer walking into the range from either of the street gates; he would be taking too many chances of being seen."

INITIAL YEAR HARD ON BABES

CHICAGO — One out of every 13.6 babies born annually in the United States dies before reaching its first birthday, according to a survey of the American Research Foundation based on the latest statistics in the registration areas of this country.

"Of 1,856 babies born in America every year, an average of 136,

113 die before the end of twelve months," says a bulletin covering the survey. "The big percentage of mortality among infants occurs during the first month of life. Deaths in the majority of cases are due to lack of proper care and to the fact that mothers make more mistakes in the first weeks of their babies' lives than in all the remainder of the first year."

Sensible Way To Lose Fat

Start taking Kruschen Salts — that's the common-sense way to reduce—but don't take them with the idea that they possess reducing qualities in themselves.

This is what they do—they clean out the impurities in your blood by keeping the bowels, kidneys and liver in splendid working shape and fill you with a vigor and tireless energy you'd most forgotten had existed.

As a result instead of planting yourself in an easy chair every free moment and letting flabby fat accumulate you feel an urge for activity that keeps you moving around doing the things you've always wanted to do and needed to do to keep you in good condition.

Then watch the pounds slide off! Kruschen Salts are the up-to-date Fountain of Youth. Take one half teaspoonful in a glass of hot or cold water tomorrow morning and every morning—they're tasteless that way, and if they don't change your whole idea about reducing, go back and get the small price you paid for them. Get an 85-cent bottle of Kruschen Salts—lasts 4 weeks—at Carnahan Drug Co. or any progressive druggist anywhere in the world.

It's the Little Daily Dose that does it.—Adv.

PROS ADD STRENGTH FOR TILT WITH SHERERS

Earl Zook, Dixon In Lineup

Bill Miller Will be Back on Job Also Tonight.

With the addition of Earl B. Zook, former Bethany College star, and present coach of East Liverpool high school athletes, Tom Dixon, one-time cage luminary for Susquehanna college, and Bill Glumac, who was the big noise on Midland's high school quint a year ago, the East Liverpool pros are set for their clash with the Canton Sherers Soda Grills tonight on the high school court.

With Zook and Dixon in the lineup, the Pros' roster is as strong as it has ever been during the last two seasons.

Zook, it will be recalled, is the only athlete who ever came out of Bethany college with four letters, winning the coveted honor in football, baseball, basketball and track.

In addition to his high school and college experience, the Blue and White mentor also has had a taste of the semi-pro brand of sport and at present is playing a great game for one of the clubs of the Crucible Steel circuit in Midland.

Dixon reputedly is one of the best basketball men produced at Susquehanna college in the last decade. He plays the center position, although, in a pinch, Zook can play at the pivot also.

Dixon is strangely reminiscent of Ray Wilde, former Chester coach, one of the finest all-around college or professional players who has ever appeared on a local court. Dixon handles his shots much like the Geneva collegian and appears to possess the speed, to a great degree, of the former local star.

Bill Miller, guard star of the Allegheny county circuit, playing with the Fintex, will return to the East Liverpool lineup tonight against the Cantonians and his debut, it is thought, will be the occasion of a big ovation from the many friends he made here a year ago.

Firth Smith, Paul English and Percy Wyant, regular members of the squad, will complete the roster. Nate Lippe, forward, will be forced to supervise activities of his Allegheny high school squad tonight, and as a result, will be unable to line up with the team.

The Canton quint, piloted by Rex McConnell, former East Liverpool newspaper man, and recognized one of the best independent teams now operating in eastern Ohio, jump to East Liverpool from Cleveland where they played last night.

Tonight's cage card begins at 7 o'clock with the McKinley grade school five meeting the Glenmoor-McDonald squad.

The Nonpareils go on with the Cable Cleaners of Toronto in the semifinal at 8 o'clock and the main event is scheduled for 9:00 o'clock.

Approximately 400 downstairs reserved seats have been provided by the installation of the Patterson Field bleacher seats there. All of these seats are reserved.

AT NEW YORK—Al Singer, New York lightweight, won on technical kayo, in third round, over George Day, New Haven.

AT PHILADELPHIA—Vidal Gregorio, Spanish bantam, defeated Eugene Huat, Frenchman, (10).

AT ROCHESTER, N. Y.—Peter Auguts, Bridgeport, Conn., won decision over Sam Bruce, Buffalo welterweight (10).

"The Bigger They Are, Etc. -"

THE LEANING TOWER OF PISA—6 FEET 11 INCHES HIGH—AND 285 POUNDS HEAVY!

Primo CARNERA

American fans are always sarcastically skeptical concerning the championship qualities of huge beefy boxers, particularly foreigners; but they are wont to pay in large numbers to see such big boys tumbled. And so a prosperous if not successful New Year seems to be ahead of Primo Carnera, the 6-foot-11, 280-pounder who was recently imported from Italy to add interest to our obviously sluggish heavyweight situation.

Carnera is indeed a physical marvel and he may surprise many when more experienced in the ring. Thus far, Primo has smashed down a few obscure European bruisers and figured in two rather lively bouts with William (Young) Stribling, winning and losing on a foul in each instance. Stribling gave the giant a sound boxing lesson on each occasion, but the titanic Italian showed remarkable strength and courage. Incidentally, Carnera was the first to ever score a knockdown against the agile and clever Georgia boy.

If this Latin Leviathan would, or could, learn to box with the technique of experience, his championship dreams might be realized but the chances are he will be rushed into the ring against our better-class trial horses and he probably will be spoiled the same way Luis Angel Firpo was when catapulted into Jack Dempsey during his latter's blazing prime.

Think of what they did to Carnera in sending him against Stribling, one of the smartest and cleverest of all active heavies! Even tremendous size advantage could not offset experience under the circumstances.

Following the matchmaking precedent, "The Sport Bug" would not be surprised if "Fiddle Feet" (as Jackie Farrell calls him) is given Johnny Risko or George Godfrey as trial horses should he get by Jimmy Maloney of Boston.

Of course, should Maloney defeat Carnera badly it will greatly diminish Primo's value as a box office magnet. But if the Gargantuan Gladiator beats Jimmy or gives him a thrilling battle, a fortune is assured the one-time circus strong man who, as a boy, walked the streets of his native Venice (so they say) in gondolas. Otherwise, Carnera merely will be recorded in fistic history as another of the ring's freaks. He simply will be remembered as "Fiddle Feet" (their size threw Mr. Gene Tunney into ecstasies of astonishment) long after his real name has been forgotten.

TUNNEY PASSES RESTFUL NIGHT

Former Champion Recovering From Successful Operation In New York.

By International News Service. NEW YORK, Jan. 14.—Gene Tunney, former world's heavyweight boxing champion, who underwent a successful operation yesterday for a kidney ailment, passed a restful night and was reported "in splendid condition" today.

At the hospital early this morning it was stated the former boxing champion had rested well during the night and his sleep had been only lightly disturbed.

Sunday School Court Squads Open Season

Newell M. E., and M. E. (B) Cop Opening Tilts.

The Newell Methodist Episcopal church five came close to blanking the Baptists in a 20 to 3 clash and the M. E. (B) quint copped from the Second Christians, 22 to 8, in opening games of the Sunday school circuit last night.

Three foul shots saved the Baptists from a whitewashing, Mackey getting two of them and Lamborne the other.

Scoring among the Newellites was well distributed, Flannigan leading with seven points.

Crow and George led the attack of the Second Christian church quint but could not roll up enough points to compete successfully with the Methodists, who bagged 10 points for the winners.

In the first minute of play, Irondale tied it immediately. The two teams fought on even terms for three quarters of the game, neither ever being more than one point in the lead. In the final quarter the Irons put on a scoring spree, sewing the game up when three baskets were garnered from the center of the floor.

Buckeye Quintets In Action

May Settle Question of Who's Who This Week.

BY JOSEPH K. RUKENBROD, International News Service Staff Correspondent.

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 14.—"Who's Who" in Ohio college basketball seems likely to be determined this week, with important clashes on the schedule for tonight and Saturday and 12 games due to be played during the week.

The early-season leaders of both the Buckeye and Ohio conferences should be known when the curtain is rung down on the week's performances.

Ohio Wesleyan tangles with the strong Cincinnati five at Cincinnati tonight in one of the high spots of the season's play. Both teams are undefeated and the entertainment should be of the highest calibre.

Miami, which has a habit of putting a cog in the championship hopes of the leading title contenders, is outstanding this year. The big red meets the tough Ohio Bobcats at Athens Saturday in their first tangle of the 1930 season.

Tonight's battle between the Bishops and Cincinnati should be of intense interest. The two teams held the 1929 Buckeye championship jointly.

Other games in the B. A. A. this week will see Wittenberg and Ohio on the floor at Springfield Friday. The Wesleyan Bishops meet Denison Saturday.

Three defeats have been registered in this league, but no one can deny that every team is still considered in the race. Wesleyan defeated Ohio by only six points. Cincinnati downed Denison by the same margin. Wittenberg bowed to Miami, 30-21, is the only decisive defeat of the season.

Complications confront the best of fans and critics in the Ohio conference, but there are indications that things will be straightened out somewhat this week. The Akron-Vooster game at Akron Thursday and the Akron-Mt. Union contest at Alliance Saturday, are placed in the limelight. Akron and Wooster are undefeated. Mt. Union has lost only to Wooster.

Two conference games are on the card for tomorrow night. They are Oberlin and Hiram at Hiram and Kenyon and Mt. Union at Alliance.

Things are popping other parts of the state, with the pan getting warm in the Northwest Ohio conference. Defiance and Bluffton, undefeated in their first contests, meet on the former's floor Thursday. Defiance, defending champion of the conference, is favored to win. Findlay will open its conference campaign against Bowling Green Saturday in the other game of the week in this circle.

RUDDIES IN CHESTER.

The Radio Rudies are scheduled to clash with the Wellsville Epworth Leaguers tonight at 8 o'clock on the Chester auditorium court.

The Rudies will meet at the B. & B. cafe at 7 o'clock. Managers can book games with the Rudies by calling 863.

ASHLAND BEATS FINDLAY.

By International News Service. ASHLAND, O., Jan. 14.—Ashland college defeated Findlay college here last night, 42 to 33, in a game that featured fast passing and swift breaks for the basket.

The half ended 23-12 in Ashland's favor. Johnson and Wartler featured the Ashland attack. Buttermore starred for the losers.

LENIN DEATH SAVED CAUSE OF COMMUNISM

Joseph Stalin, Iron Man, Saved Day For Reds.

FACTORS CITED

Writer Explains Five-Year Industrial Plan.

Editors' note: This is one of a series of articles on conditions in Soviet Russia of today which Frazier Hunt, famous war correspondent and magazine writer, has written especially for International News Service.

In this article Mr. Hunt makes the startling disclosure that Nicolai Lenin's death probably saved the cause of communism, rather than damaged it; that during the last months of Lenin's life and rule in Russia the principle of communism were being rapidly crowded out of Russia by a limited capitalist economic policy. It was Joseph Stalin, the present "Iron Man" of Russia who restored communism, crushed the private trader and the rich peasant with a mailed fist, and dreamed the great dream of the five-year industrial plan.

Something of what that plan contemplates for Russia is told in the following article.

LONDON, Jan. 14.—Today Russia, with American help, is doing business. She is a going concern. Despite terrific unrest and hate of the richer peasants—the despised "Kulaks"—despite a sullen discontent and a vast disillusionment among millions—despite all the innumerable difficulties that are the inheritance of 15 years of continuous war and revolution, Soviet Russia is forging ahead.

New Capitalism Begun

She has finished her old "intellectual" revolution. Today she has a "practical" revolution, a "physical" revolution. Lenin and his followers believed that once they could capture the factories for the city workmen and the land for the peasants, they could put over a successful revolution. But they found they could not. The factories; managerial sabotage, civil war, foreign intervention and the blockade, coupled with the heart-breaking famine of 1920-21 was too much. Hard and fast communism was swung into a new economic policy that permitted the small trader, the little factory owner and the richer, more intelligent peasant to prosper. A new capitalism began to take root. Communist principles were being swept aside and threatened.

Then with the death of Lenin, a newer, harder group took control. The new economic policy was condemned; the private trader crushed; the rich peasant ordered to be ostracized and broken and a new Russia dreamed of in a great five-year industrial plan.

Every phase of life was touched by the stupendous, audacious plan. It started October 1, 1928, and already it is far ahead of its schedule. Russia is building factories and mills, and power plants and great agricultural schemes. She is putting more bricks on bricks than all the rest of Continental Europe put together.

"Pass America" Is Motto

She will carry out the building operation in this gigantic five-year plan. But when she gets all this built how efficiently can she operate it? This is the crux of the Soviet problem—at least for this decade.

Let me repeat: The Soviet union will carry out the building plans of the five-year period. And more: The short of a terrific and devastating famine can retard her from doing it in even less time than her original estimates. This statement obviously carries with it the unquestionable assurance that the Soviet union is solid and lasting. That all effective counter-revolution is over; that Russia's only problem is an internal economic one.

Granted all this—what can she do with this magnificent economic equipment once she has it built? If she can run it as efficiently as American managers and American workmen and American genius can, then within 15 or 20 years Soviet Russia will be a real competitor of America. Her second motto: "Catch up with and pass America"—will be close at hand.

Non-Mechanical People.

But Russians are a non-mechanical people. Eighty-five per cent of them, a few years ago, could not read or write. They had never seen a more complicated machine than an eight-inch steel plow. They had no 150 years of mechanical tradition behind them.

And now in a brief half decade they are to be motorized and industrialized in terms of America. They are to start off in great haste.

They are to start off in great haste and in a magnificent and audacious dream—but that something is bound to break. Until they can get the hang of this new machine of civilization, they will rip out gear after gear.

They are thrilled beyond belief by anything and everything mechanical. Driving through a little village in the North Caucasus, and stopping for a moment to ask directions, we had an old peasant beg us to wait until he could run and tell his wife so she could see our motor car. He couldn't handle a monkey-wrench, but he had caught the religious fervor of the new god machinery.

Good Workmanship Lacking

Everywhere in Russia this is true. The machine—the factory—the motor car—the tractor—these are the symbols of New Russia. They have captured the minds of 152,000,000 people. But this 152,000,000 must teach old fashioned hands how to do modern things.

Today they will not be able to operate their great new plants and factories at more than 25 per cent of American efficiency. This means that it will take four times the labor—in terms of men and machines—to turn out a given unit of product. They cannot overnight be shifted from a backward, agricultural people to a highly modernized, highly-efficient mechanized people.

They can construct factories—import machinery and American technical aid, but the building of tractors, motors, machinery are fundamentally questions of assembly, not engineering, trained managers nor efficient workers, nor do they understand the tremendous difficulties of exact materials. It will be impossible to turn out first rate machinery except after years of experimentation and elimination. Two things are indispensable: First, good workmanship; and second, good materials. Both are woefully lacking in Russia at present.

INDUSTRIALS CLIMB, FALL

Utilities Also Tumble In Profit-taking Wave.

By W. S. COUSINS

NEW YORK, Jan. 14.—Most of the active industrial and utility stocks reached higher price levels in the early trading today, only to fall back in the second hour when the wave of profit taking flowed in. Pennsylvania, at the head of the popular rally, forged ahead to 79, aided by good earnings reports and the fact that the "rights" to buy the new shares expire tomorrow. United States Steel and Consolidated Gas led the bull attacks in the industrial and utility stocks respectively.

The market as a whole once more appeared to be working out of its narrow rut, transactions in the well known shares increasing about 50 per cent over the last few full sessions. Investment buying was encouraged by the favorable surveys of industry and business, though the reports of past performances in the building and other industries which came to hand today, were rather gloomy. Building construction in December, for example, fell off 35 per cent from the aggregate of the same month in 1928.

SELECT THAYER BRIBERY JURY

New Castle Architect Charged With Soliciting $7,500 in Sanitarium Contract.

CANTON, O., Jan. 14.—Selection of a jury in the bribery trial of Albert L. Thayer, New Castle, Pa., architect, accused of having sought a $7,500 bribe in connection with the building of the new Molly Stark tuberculosis sanitarium, got under way here today.

Thayer is specifically charged with soliciting a $7,500 bribe from George Melbourne, head of the construction company which had the general contract for building the $1,000,000 hospital.

Authorities here predict that the trial of Thayer will be one of the most hotly contested legal battles ever staged in Stark county. According to Prosecutor James M. Augst, the decisive question that will undoubtedly arise is, whether Thayer, as architect for the project, can be classed as a "public official." "Only public officials," Augst said, "can be prosecuted under the Ohio bribery laws."

Thayer is the second man directly concerned with the building of the Stark sanitarium to face charges of bribery. Charles A. Fromm, former president of the Stark county board of commissioners, was convicted of soliciting a bribe in Cleveland several weeks ago. He was sentenced to serve one to ten years in the penitentiary.

Fromm faces another indictment here, on a charge of having a private interest in a public contract.

FIRE DAMAGES TANK COMPANY

LONDON, O., Jan. 14.—Fire of undetermined origin early today caused damage estimated at $50,000 to the London Tankage company here. Firemen were unable to combat the flames efficiently because there were no fire plugs in the vicinity of the plant, on the outskirts of the town.

3-YEAR-OLD PUPIL

Little Alfred Kendall Kelly, three years old, is one of the 25 children of the same age recently enrolled in the nursery school just opened by Western Reserve University, Cleveland, of which his grandfather, Dr. Robert Ernest Vinson, is president. Matriculates in the nursery school pay the same tuition and rates as their 10,000 grown-up fellow-students of the neighboring university.
